

DYNAMIC TECHNIQUES FOR CUSTOM-FIT KNEE REPLACEMENTS

Abstract

The invention discloses methodology for utilizing continual sensor-based 5 data to design and adjust orthotics to fit an individual, in a given dynamic environment, preferably in an optimal manner. The method includes procedures for producing a virtual orthodic so that an actual construction of a physical orthodic can be directly obtained from the virtual orthodic.